The U. S. steamer Albatross is not yet ready to begin the work of surveying for the Pacific cable. The Navy Department is having trouble in securing the 2000 pounds of piane wire in one piece, necessary for making the soundings.

Marutea Island. San Francisco is going through the throes of a municipal revolution. A new grand jury has been secured not subservient to the bosses. Its legality is being contested by the correspondents. Buckley has fied to Canada with Sam Rainey, and the Republican bosses are ready to go if need be. Judge Wallace punished Richard Chute, a Republican leader, for refusing to testify before the jury, and he was freed after a singular contest by Judge Murphy on a writ of habeas corpus. The fight is still on. The grand jury will certainly indict Buckley and his licutements.

He is accused with Judge Denson, a well-known law-yer, with trying to ruin W. P. Fuller, Jr., by connecting his name with a Miss Kendali, to compel him (Fuller) to sell out his interest in the business for less than it was worth. The case will make a great sensation in court. On August 31st, Mrs. Emily Maillard, a daughter of M. M. Tompkins, one of the wealthiest men in California, disappeared from her home in Marin county. She has been found though a reward of $1000 failed to find her. She ran away with her hired man, and is now in a logger's cabin in Humboldt county.
